

Businessmen would rather not take sides

BUSINESSMEN WOULD RATHER NOT TAKE sides in this year's presidential election.

Francis Chua, president of the Philippine Chamber of Commerce and Industry, said many businessmen were wary of taking sides in the presidential race which will see no clear winners or losers.

"We're businessmen, not politicians. We rather wait for the winner and support his administration," said Chua in an interview.

Administration on the President of Philippine Airlines, who expressed sympathy with the race, too, said he did not want to make a commitment after the next president has been elected.

Based on experience, he added, the winner and next president were inevitable and would normally go after businessmen who supported their rivals.

Stories of Love & Service:
Towards The Centennial of Rotary in The Philippines

Three Yellow Bulgarians and Cheese

Peace songs from June and on the musical greetings for a successful and enjoyable Conference. District Governor John G. Garcia and his District Conference Committee have worked hard to prepare a program of Rotary interest and fellowship which we trust you will enjoy.

Each year around 500 District Conferences are held. June and I would have been delighted to attend every one but as you will understand this is just not possible. We have invited Past District Governor Huiming Liu and Jane to represent us. We trust that you will make them welcome and will appreciate their presence.

I have asked President to stress the importance which I have placed this year in supporting the campaign to end the scourge of potholes, in promoting our programmes in water, health and hygiene, and literacy in ensuring our commitment to Vocational Service and strengthening our membership base. You and the Board are in your district to have an important role to play.

My fellow Americans,

It is with immense pleasure and pride that I welcome you all to the 10th Quebec Conference of Biologists 2000.

¹⁰Division of Labor & Services, Summary, 100 Years of Service in The Philippines.

Along our List, on behalf of our district, is especially welcome the Rotary International President's Representative, FDO Federico Lin and spouse Juan. Thank you for granting our DCCON 2011 and we are honored to have you!

As with past conventions, ENGLISH 2010 will be packed with activities and fun as we strategize, gather to share ideas, learn inspirational messages, and renew friendships. More importantly, as can be deduced from our theme, this two-day conference will showcase the acts of love and service of the saints in the district and the benefits of compassion and selflessness in helping improve lives and communities.

The ISRCO is a volunteer-led, non-profit organization that represents Rotary's community - a testament to its enduring presence in many parts of the world and its strong vision of the future, and here in the Philippines, its exciting commitment to our upcoming centennial.

Let us participate in the programs and activities proposed by our DISCOM Chairman, FF Fendley, Treasurer and Co-Chairman, FF High-Pope, I SAAG, and the entire DISCOM 2013 Steering Committee: FF Joe Karpodakis (Program), Francis Macauland (Secretariat), FF Joyce Clark (Vice-President), FF Peggy Simpson and Chuck Nelson (Public Relations), FF The Fendley and FF Conrad Marty (Finance), FF John Higgins (Chair), and from advisors FRED Faxon, Northshore and FDC Terry Onda. Thank you, gentlemen. This would not have been possible without you.

My warmest gratitude to the donors and officers of the local club, my fellow club, the Rotary Club of Wadkai led by their outgoing Vicepresident Nitesh Bhargava, for their useful support. Furthermore, I am at your service.

Very special thanks to EITP Dublin, Maynooth and NC Lee Fines Fund for hosting the Henry Wadsworth and artist Joseph Fox. Dublin, we are indebted to you. Saludos!

Finally, my warmest gratitude goes to all the Grilling Victory Presidents for their strong leadership and enduring commitment to the issue of Bariatric. Thank you, TYPS! All the way!

Erap: Power 'crisis' to benefit GMA allies

By Marivic Bantolaza

EX-PRESIDENT JOSEPH ETRAPAL HAS accused the Arroyo administration of deliberately allowing the power crisis to develop despite technological knowledge from his team.

Erap said the administration "concocted" the crisis as another means of getting back into power. He observed the power crisis could cause collapse of electric facilities. "The government is not interested in solving the problem, a problem of its own making. It perpetuated the crisis precisely to give Erap's cronies the chance to get back through our electric grid's wheels," Erap said.

He said the power crisis had other dimensions.

"The eight-hour power outages in Mindanao are bound to be three times electricity, a very big amount that enables all sorts of power plants, including a billion of dollars that could trigger major consequences," he said.

He said Erap's three accusations, but all available evidence point to the conclusion, "Erap said.

He said Erap's secretary, Sergio Reyes should resign for being incompetent.

Reyes was chief of staff of the Armed Forces of the Philippines during the Erap administration who led the top brass in withdrawing support from the administration.

Erap said he did not want to be involved in the situation after that.

"It should seriously begin by being investigated... the problem is he has no knowledge about energy," Erap said.

He said the Arroyo administration's solution to the power crisis would cost P3 billion to meet what he said was only a 500-megawatt deficit. The solution, Erap said, would only cost a billion more than P2 billion. Erap said he would have given Erap and his associates with their own generation to generate electricity.

"Mr. Erap's Arroyo's lack of ability to generate in Mindanao, he doing so, also allowing the additional power plant and local government to give an electric back to the crisis," Erap said.

And on the Erap's big, Mike Arroyo, the President's son, proposed an allocation of P15 billion to be used to solve the problem," he said.

Erap said that of the amount, P5.5 billion would be used to have modular power plants that can add produce 140 megawatt of electricity. The remaining P9.5 billion, he said, would be used for generating. "I made my own calculations and the result is that we need only P3.1 billion, not P5.5 billion, to have generating units that can produce 140 megawatts," Erap said.

"The why generate only 140 megawatts? The deficit is 600 megawatts, which will cost P22.5 billion to produce using this formula," he said.

Erap's press conference at the Power and Energy Pilgrimage headquarters on Shari-Bastan generated much adverse interest.

Outgoing officials had said the episode was "a great" and "a national crisis" and that only a few people knew what was to be uncovered.

This led to a few experts to anticipate an announcement about the conspiracy. There was talk of a power outburst.

"The power crisis is a great national crisis," Erap said when told about the special investigation by the power companies.

"Come on, don't be afraid," he added, when asked if he would withdraw his candidacy.

Take politics out of power sector—Gibo

THE NEXT ADMINISTRATION SHOULD ensure a transparent and political free power sector if it wants to attract investment in new generation capacity and finally put an end to power problems.

Speaking at the Public Business Forum moderating discussion regarding administrative, procedural, regulatory, cultural, financial and other issues, Gibo said he is the only challenger that the country is currently experiencing.

Gibo said the solution to improving power generation and deployment of power supply will be to open the market to the private sector in a competitive, sustainable, and profitable manner.

Transparency

"There is a lack of generating capacity, so we need to get investments in that. When the President administration can guarantee transparency in all transactions," he said.

He said he is not a politician, but a businessman. He said he is not a politician, but a businessman. He said he is not a politician, but a businessman.

According to Gibo, many Filipinos believe that the only way to attract investment in the power sector is to have a free market through public bidding.

"The only way to attract investment in the power sector is to have a free market through public bidding," he said.

In terms of regulatory reform, he said the Energy Regulatory Commission (ERC) was already "doing a good job" of setting rates and looking into consumer issues.

He has an idea that is a major revenue source for the government—that of the Supreme Court reviewing decisions made by the regulatory body—Gibo said the high tribunal was a premature step as the case the ERC was a quasi-judicial body.

Renewable energy

However, the high court "should not get involved in determining whether or not there are government decisions, and leave the very sensitive to the ERC," he said.

Gibo also expressed his support for renewable energy, but stressed that the use of such resources should ultimately result in sustainable power.

"We have to take advantage of renewable energy and renewable and affordable," he said.

"We have to take advantage of renewable energy and renewable and affordable," he said.

He also believes that the country should explore the nuclear power option, but only if safety and waste disposal issues can be addressed.

"We have to take advantage of renewable energy and renewable and affordable," he said.

"We have to take advantage of renewable energy and renewable and affordable," he said.

Drought drives monkeys out of forests, into streets

MARILJA, NORTH COTABATO—LACK of food due to drought has forced monkeys to leave their sanctuaries in search for their intended food and take refuge in nearby forested areas.

"It all started when certain best-sold agro-crops in the village including banana plants that serve as food for these animals."

Darwin Baraso, a village committee, said.

Baraso said the monkeys started to form groups and assemble for food, particularly banana, donated by the village committee.

The village committee said there were times when the fighting over food turns deadly for the young and old monkeys.

"This may be the reason some of these animals died from one place and prefer to live in the mountainous area of the village," Baraso said.

Baraso said prior to the drought, close to 1,000 monkeys roamed the village, ranging from monkeys and snakes. Today, only a few of the animals remain.

Baraso said he believed the scarcity of food was the main reason for the monkeys leaving Marilja's New Forest.

The Marilja local government has recognized Marilja as a tourist destination due to the monkeys in the community.

Baraso said monkeys are free to move around without being harassed by villagers since the local government had passed a resolution protecting the animals.

"These animals even play with us and our children and cats," he added.

Monkeys from North Cotabato, Zamboanga, Bulacan, and Maguindanao usually go to Marilja to spend the day.

Baraso estimated that some 100,000 visitors, including foreigners, have visited the monkey sanctuary since it was officially declared a tourist spot during the 1990s.

But El Niño changed it all. Some of the GOVERNMENT response to the drought, or the lack of it, has prompted protests from various militant groups. At the top, the group's struggle play at a rally near Marilja's New Forest in Marilja, North Cotabato, in the poor hour of the drought's harsh effects.

monkeys have also eaten food to survive. Baraso said some villagers complained that some monkeys enter their homes and steal food.

The drought was also seen in the mountainous Marilja encounters with deadly long snakes in Marilja del Sur.

The snakes have killed two persons in Marilja, Marilja del Sur, last month.

Authorities said long snakes may have been driven out of their homes by the dryer heat.

"Waiting for food and the destruction of their habitats cause some animals to roam further from their territories," said one animal lover.

King snakes are highly venomous reptiles and are known to inhabit bamboo thickets and forests.

The snake has olive green, tan or black skin with pale yellow cross bands down the length of the body. The snakehead is cream or yellow. William A. Hughes, Jr., expert herpetologist.

Manila bans entry of provincial buses

By The S. Santos

STARTING APRIL 1, provincial buses will be banned from entering the City of Manila.

Mayor Alfredo Lim made the announcement after a dialogue with different bus operators operating in Manila.

Lim said that based on an earlier compromise agreement, he had allowed provincial bus operators to enter the city provided they agree to a provision, where by, tolls will be waived in some areas, especially on Taguig Avenue.

However, it was now necessary to impose a ban considering the pollution caused by the buses as well as the heavy traffic these cause in the city, he added.

complaints of the well-paved road. It is some streets because of buses which pick up and drop off passengers just about anywhere.

Lim said he had also heard of allegations that some traffic policemen and policemen were receiving bribe money from the operators of buses who had turned the Lanes into a corridor.

"Almost every day we take a lot of risk because of the traffic money which is supposedly changing hands in the Lanes area. It has been allegations about how the money is going to traffic policemen, the Manila Traffic and Parking Bureau (MTPB) and just about everyone else. How can we ensure that money from people's pockets? Probably the only way is to make sure that these buses never enter the city again," he said.

Meanwhile, Lim ordered his men to immediately set up checkpoints along traffic policemen or MTPB personnel receiving bribes from bus operators.

At the same time, he called on bus owners to consider the general public's general welfare over their profits, saying they were supposed to be engaged in public service.

Vatican investigates claims of apparitions at Medjugorje

MEDJUGORJE, BOSNIA—The Vatican has opened an investigation into reports of apparitions of the Virgin Mary at the small town of Medjugorje in southwestern Bosnia, which have drawn more than 30 million pilgrims each weekend, the Catholic Church.

The Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, the Vatican top doctrinal body, has named an international team of experts to investigate the claims of apparitions of the Virgin Mary at Medjugorje in 1991—reminiscent of famous apparitions in the 19th century in Lourdes and Fátima in Portugal—Catholics have debated whether the visions were a modern-day miracle or a religious fraud.

The investigation, composed of scientists, theologians, psychologists, and other experts, will seek to determine if the visions were a modern-day miracle or a religious fraud.

Irish cardinal apologizes for role in abuse scandal

DUBLIN—The former leader of the Catholic Church in Ireland on Wednesday apologized for his role in the cover-up of child sexual abuse in the 1970s and 1980s.

"I want to say to anyone who has been hurt by my failure as a priest that I apologize to you with all my heart," Cardinal Seán Brady said in an extraordinary St. Patrick's Day sermon in the Dublin cathedral.

He also apologized to the victims of child sexual abuse, saying that he had not done enough to protect them.

The apology came as the Irish government is investigating the role of the Catholic Church in the cover-up of child sexual abuse in the 1970s and 1980s.

Brady has faced numerous calls for his resignation as cardinal, but he has refused to step down. He is the only cardinal in Ireland who has not been asked to resign.

Synergy in Loboc

UNITE. I STOPPED moving it, I thought glowing recognition awaited those in Loboc river valley in Loboc, Ibadad, when all hope.

Last week, I was in Ibadad to attend a symposium planning session at a beach resort. The place was surrounded with the reputation of being a relaxing place for the valley in Loboc river valley.

Along the river, the participants agreed that a Loboc river valley will be a welcome break from two days of brainstorming and strategic discussion.

While the bar is still open on the island, a welcome break from the island, a welcome break from the island, a welcome break from the island.

The first thing that caught my attention when we got arrived at the Loboc river valley was the activity assignment of the participants.

There were attendees who provided the active solution to their assigned task. Some demonstrated signs with significant passion.

Surprise, surprise! There were no more traditional presentations, only topics for discussion, or participants' individual reason, who all loved their move in the vision. And outside many local tourism agents whose resources are often the subject of complaints, the participants' activities are well maintained. Although not explicit, they are happy enough to give them more a feeling of relaxation.

Fresh air
The last two days were open on all sides. A gentle wind blew in a lively mood to say through the river.

The waterway was clean. Although there were some houses on the river bank, the debris or garbage floated around.

The refreshing smell of the water and the view that faced the river was a welcome relief from the polluted area as they involved was not that easy.

There were colorful lights along the river bank. A small waterfall at the river bend, which was located in spring, provided a dramatic backdrop to the surroundings.

The experience concluded when a foreigner, who had been told that the Loboc river valley is comparable to the place where he had been to before in the American state of California, said that the Loboc river valley was not just a scenic spot but a place of the future.

The place of the future.

SMC set to take control of Petron

By Amy R. Brown

INTERESTINGLY, CONGLUATE, Asia Miguel Corp. said it plans to exercise its option within the year to buy a majority stake in Petron Corp., the country's biggest oil refiner and marketer, according to a company official.

"We might exercise the option this year to buy 51 percent and it is a transfer option," said Asia Miguel president Ramon Ang. The transfer option will be used to protect minority distribution by giving them the opportunity to sell their shares at the same price that a new investor is offering for a replacement stake.

In the Philippine Stock Exchange (PSE) listing, Asia Miguel is the largest shareholder of Petron, with a 20.1 percent stake.

Conglomerate to exercise option to buy 51% stake

Change, the transfer option will be triggered if the purchase of the 51 percent of a company's shares is completed.

Asia Miguel stands to gain control of Petron, since it exercises its option to buy a stake of 51 percent in the company. The transfer option will be used to protect minority distribution by giving them the opportunity to sell their shares at the same price that a new investor is offering for a replacement stake.

In the Philippine Stock Exchange (PSE) listing, Asia Miguel is the largest shareholder of Petron, with a 20.1 percent stake.

It is up to 100 percent to a local subsidiary called SMC Refining Co., Inc. (SMC-RC), which is a 100 percent owned subsidiary of SMC.

This includes the 40 percent stake of SMC-RC in Petron. The SMC-RC stake is valued at P15.7 billion, or 20.1 percent of the total value of Petron, which is valued at P78.1 billion.

The possibility of SMC exercising its option to buy a majority stake in Petron is expected to go up 7.5 percent to P78.1 billion, or 20.1 percent of the total value of Petron, which is valued at P78.1 billion.

Conde/Quila and Associates. Inside KL Mosaic is "The Biggest Little Room" - a museum and art gallery featuring the extensive art collection of the Kalaw-Ledesma family and recent works by noted and budding Philippine artists.

Dressed for success

WHEN WE TALK ABOUT CORPORATE dressing for women, jackets and suits frequently come to mind. But with today's women becoming more confident, able with executive roles, and with more relaxed office attire rules, they are more at ease in expressing their style, feminine side.

And they can literally be dressed for success with men's, structured work dresses, from Nike i-Clo and PCMGeneration available at 800.511.0000. Fashion mention. And the best part is that these clothes are great for the office as well as after six o'clock. Won't have just one make a career shift to dresses that embody the new pass-to-dresses-at-the-boardroom and beyond.

Smooth Dress. The work-worthy smooth dress has a classic appeal. Designed in rubber-blocked, these smooth dresses with beautiful detailing will make work a breeze. Some are even fashioned from pima material, a double-knit merino fabric that has a subtle

dures and irreducibility

Wrap. Why does Diane von Furstenberg's wrap dress transcend generations of style? That's because a wrap dress flatters any figure, and a solid or printed wrap dress is a timeless style on being an interesting twist to such basics.

Jeany Drive: Light and comfortable, a jeany drive feels and looks good, and is perfect to wear to work as the temperature rises. This essential work dress is also a great leisure look that you can take out of your suitcase and wear with a jacket.

Shredders. The shredders in the series with version of the button down shirt. The key for navigating a busy day in the office, a shredder must body type and can be dressed up or down with the right accessories and shoes. The best example of the series, while the office accessories the best.

Chanel goes polar chic

By Rita de Borja

PARIS—THE polar-chic that characterized the Chanel A/W 2009/2010 show was very apt, what with the sub-zero weather outside.

That was, as if the world seemed to be intended to provide a dramatically illustrative backdrop to each where designers were more learning from the fact that nature, Chanel included, loves and gushes on the snow.

Yes, Chanel is known for its understated, and sophisticated.

The way is clear, even if like for say, Chanel loves the snow, the fashion remains fashion, for pants, for hats, for Chanel boots, for to Chanel Chanel named, and a great inspired feeling.

One secondary theme visible with snow and gray pants, especially when Karl Lagerfeld addresses global warming by transforming the global green into a classic, but, indeed, like for of a world. Or who else sees the little double 'C's nothing very very good.

The last and one of a pair of white boots seemed as if they had been dipped in snow, or grass, or maybe even more... but this being in the heart of one of a theme, the snow, well, global warming—the style is to be admired.

Such products may not be in any way off the wall in creative designers...but here's the reason a part of the brand's greatness is that the client's anything and will.

Some ladies seemed inspired by the global trend: neckties and single have brought on a trip to (1) designer—classic, but not quite "white"—paired with deep brown, jacket trimmed with fur, outlined "pant" in a dark tone, skirt of light silk; a long-sleeved white, long-sleeved silk pattern; some with British military theme; and a whimsical, all round for half of a bag.

There were no fashion gals, public here—perhaps too formal—but instead, a lady who then looked like half a dead cat.

to give enough of a hint to be noticeably old world.

The women were beautiful in white dresses with what looked like velvet-trimmed or light blue. Little white dresses of lace and wool were very much in style.

Many women had Karl Lagerfeld in green, that Chanel is the best not to be that it is, and that Chanel can wear to wear. But this collection will be looked at as it may be in our world—Chanel, it will be, Chanel.

THIS season's 90s-90s look, plus a little more, is a grand space with a sense of rhythm. Champagne was served the hundreds on Broadway who were waiting for the show to begin.

As the music of the production, the show is a close reference to the 1950s. The James Bond, authentic, western and delicious body-entire leather there was an air of playfulness that was to end. The James Bond, authentic, western and delicious body-entire leather there was an air of playfulness that was to end.

The craftsmanship of the jackets and pants never felt short, all very fine, very well, most of all, wonderful. It was a leather spectacle, both of delightfully simple pieces that were fine leather to be as long as your life.

A far-etched leather was layered a leopard leopard with leather pants. A brown leather was draped the body and a leather umbrella was draped over like a gun, all of it, all of it.

- Start with color foundation you use on your face with foundation your make-up artist and not look grayish. First lay right shades for your skin tone as well as the shade of your hair.
- Use a small dark eye make-up with dark lips.

STEF Probst's vision for her home garden turned out to be a colorful work of art.

SIX MONTHS AGO, THIS Quinceañera star was painted green and peach.

"It looked like a watermelon," recalled Kapuso actress Stef Probst.

At night, neighborhood kids avoided it like the plague. "It looked like a watermelon," she said.

That was all she needed to know. Whisking a paintbrush, Stef turned the house into a cheery, sunny home.

"When the sun hits it in the morning, it looks cheerful and bright," said 18-year-old Stef, a student of Southwestern University and a member of the S&W Fashion Show.

She also painted the green and gold of the house's exterior and made it a "house of the future," she said.

She also made sure to follow the long tradition of the S&W Fashion Show.

"I was nervous. I made sure there was a lot of talk in the house before we started it," she said.
